

Riverside Medical Center

The overall goal of the Psychiatry Residency Program at Riverside Medical Center is to: Provide an exceptional learning environment, which prepares residents to practice independently in general psychiatry or to enter into a subspecialty fellowship program with confidence in their clinical abilities and with compassion and professionalism in their daily interactions. The program ensures residents have the opportunity to:

- Develop with guidance, a personal program of learning that promotes growth, life-long learning through evidence-based data in differential diagnosis and appropriate treatment of patients.
- Participate in the delivery of safe, effective, compassionate patient care with progressively more responsibility.
- Develop leadership skills that will serve them in their clinical and professional journey.
- Develop communication skills to optimize interactions with patients, peers, families and all components of the multidisciplinary teams and support services to facilitate patient recovery.
- Participate in medical staff and institutional activities including committees that affect the delivery of patient care through peer review and quality improvement.
- Participate in the teaching of patients, family, students, peers and support staff.
- Develop self-assessment skills to promote life-long learning and self-care.
