

University of Louisville

The University of Louisville General Psychiatry Residency Program is a well-balanced program offering a broad array of closely supervised clinical experiences. Dedicated faculty provide our residents with the knowledge and skills to become outstanding psychiatrists. The program strives to provide residents with the breadth of knowledge needed to gain clinical excellence. Our residency provides an extensive and in depth foundation for both pharmacologic and psychotherapeutic interventions. Our General Residency Program provides a comprehensive psychiatric education. Whether through formal didactics, journal clubs, clinical rounds, or informal discussions, our commitment to learning is clear. Excellence in clinical supervision is at the core of our program and supplementary supervision is available when requested.
