

Novant Health New Hanover Regional Medical Center Combined Civilian-Military Psychiatry Residency

Make your psychiatry residency experience remarkable with a placement at Novant Health New Hanover Regional Medical Center, a unique combined military/non-military residency program. Led by expert faculty in a dynamic learning environment, you'll get a robust education and training so you leave your residency prepared to practice independently in any psychiatric setting and set up for success throughout your career.

We are seeking candidates who are dedicated, driven, and passionate to use their knowledge to the benefit of all North Carolina citizens to improve the health of our communities, one person at a time.

Our residency is one of only a handful of combined civilian-military psychiatry residencies in the country. This means you'll get experience working with both civilian and military patients through inpatient and outpatient clinical rotations at both New Hanover Regional Medical Center and Camp Lejeune.

The New Hanover Regional Medical Center psychiatry residency program is a partnership with Naval Medical Center Camp Lejeune and the UNC School of Medicine.
