The Institute of Living/Hartford Hospital Psychiatry Residency is part of a large psychiatric treatment center with a rich history dating back to 1822. It is located in a medical complex which includes an urban, academically affiliated teaching hospital with a level-1 trauma center and a children's hospital serving the diverse population of Hartford and its surrounding suburbs. There is a dedicated psychiatric emergency department and a busy psychiatric consultation service - important training sites for residents. The psychiatric campus houses an inpatient psychiatric hospital with specialized units: mood disorders, psychotic disorders, geriatric, child/adolescent. The campus includes numerous day treatment programs, an anxiety disorders center, a neuropsychiatric research center, and the Grace Webb School. With a program emphasis on education, residents receive training in the biopsychosocial conceptualization of patients, psychotherapeutic modalities, psychopharmacology, and neuroscience. There are partner fellowships in Addiction Medicine, Child/Adolescent Psychiatry including a 5-year Adult-Child Adolescent program, and Consultation/Liaison Psychiatry.
